Resource Persons: 4] tatives from these parishes, plus the students at the

] Takamoa Theological college. Two resource persons ] were from the CICC Executive and 2 local academics.

Main issues presented and discussed

Session 1: SOCIAL/CULTURAL ISSUES

by Ron Crocombe, former professor of sociology and Pacific Studies, USP, Suva, Fiji

- ◆ Definition of corruption; misusing one's job for personal gain and not for the benefit of others
- ◆ Corruption's existence in all societies and at all levels; church, government, social systems
- ◆ Degree of corruption – legal and ethical considerations; e.g. some practices may be ethically corrupt but legally clean
- ◆ Presented some statistics and indicators on some of the social problems encountered in selected developed and developing countries
- ◆ Corruption changes with culture and time
- ◆ Corruption index by Transparency International
- ◆ Issues related to media corruption

- ◆ Advertising/commercialism is corrupting consumers, especially worrying are the long-term effects on children
- ◆ Why should churches care about corruption
- ◆ Why does corruption matter – financial reasons, church reasons, it is against the constitution of church and country
- ◆ What can ordinary citizens do to minimise corruption in their own organisations
- ◆ Government/politicians can influence the churches in corrupt and unjust manners
- ◆ What can ordinary citizens do to minimise corruption elsewhere (Government, community and cultural organisations they are not directly part of)
- ◆ The church must stand up to corruption and injustice, and certainly never practice them

Session 2:

POLITICAL ISSUES

by John Herrmann, former teacher and Director of the local USP Centre, advocate for social equity and political change

- ◆ The 4 topics of this workshop are inter-related; they are the dimensions of all human beings
- ◆ How does the church make itself relevant to society today
- ◆ Today people are a lot more active in advancing the cause of the oppressed (gave examples of advocates for democracy around the world); the church can learn from this trend
- ◆ In order to be effective against corruption and injustice in politics, people must be well informed of the issues before taking to the streets
- ◆ Small size communities and close personal/family relationships can make it harder to follow strict guidelines against corruption and injustice
- ◆ Gave examples of corrupt politicians around the world
- ◆ Gave examples of champions against corruption and injustice around the world
- ◆ The phrase “look up to our leaders” is quickly losing its meaning in today’s society, thanks to the rampant level of corruption that now exists in all circles
- ◆ Church leaders must stay above politics, but they must also do the right things in order to command and maintain respect amongst the general community which includes politicians
- ◆ This changing world means the church must also adjust
- ◆ The level of corruption amongst politicians could also be related to their length of time in politics
- ◆ The gospel should be made a lot more living today, including making good use of the media to promote equity, accountability, social justice, good governance, etc.

Session 3:

ECONOMIC ISSUES

by Nga Mataio, Economist, Secretary of Agriculture, CICC General Secretary

- ◆ As with the two previous speakers, corruption also exists in any type of economic activity; banking, tourism, etc.
- ◆ Price control, an important issue for those in the outer islands due to the very high prices of goods
- ◆ See hand-out attached which the speaker used for the presentation

Session 4:

RELIGIOUS ISSUES

by Rev. Tangimetua Tangatatautai, former CICC minister, currently CICC President

- ◆ Our church leaders are decaying insofar as their responsibilities are concerned
- ◆ Church leaders sometimes can't see the signs written on the walls
- ◆ Christians must prove themselves as lights of the world
- ◆ Theological context – finances in the church are being misused, religious cults, wars, other warnings and teachings against corruption and injustice must be taken heed of
- ◆ Pacific context – protests against governments, gay movements, crossing the floor in politics, tourism leads to water shortage and other side effects on biodiversity etc.
- ◆ Wider context – globalisation of the world economy, terrorism rising, global warming, technological advances such as cloning and their biblical implications
- ◆ Christians must read, understand and practice the Word of God in order to understand its teachings about corruption and injustice
- ◆ Christians must be strong in standing up against corrupt and unjust practices; we must open our mouth
- ◆ Christians must look after their physical and spiritual well-being
- ◆ The church needs to strengthen the family unit in the first instance, before trying to strengthen those outside
- ◆ Ministers and church workers have to keep up with what's going on in society in order to be updated and therefore able to act accordingly
- ◆ Gospel Day should be more involving others rather than only CICC members
- ◆ Other activities such as TV, rugby, housie, raffles, etc. are taking us away from the right path and could weaken our faith
- ◆ Ministers need to be empowered to do the right things
- ◆ Effective communication is necessary for the church to be well informed about events within and outside of the organisation
- ◆ We must work on ways to entice our youth so that they don't go further into sin and other undesirable habits
- ◆ Must strive for balance in life, e.g. between academic and spiritual development

Summary

- ◆ Corruption and injustice are very much alive today in all corners of society – church, government, business sector, media, culture/traditional society
- ◆ The level of corruption and injustice are higher today than before

- ◆ People must be well informed before advocating for change, and never get involved in corrupt and unjust practices
- ◆ Change must come from all sectors of society; addressing corruption and injustice is a responsibility for everybody
- ◆ If corruption and injustice are not effectively addressed, they will continue to erode the moral foundation of society, leading to disorder, chaos, and the breakup of social justice
- ◆ The church, perhaps through the Religious Advisory Council (RAC), may consider asking Government for a fixed allocation for religion in its annual budget, and let RAC decide how best to distribute such fund; this way will minimise Government's political intervention in church matters

Recommendations

Members of the church must move fast on the issue of corruption and injustice; it must undertake to do the following:

Within the church

1. Regularly read the Word and pray
2. Be well informed about the issues and effectively campaign against them in their own parishes, in the communities, at local government levels, at the national government level. To be well informed, members must regularly tune in to news headlines, ask questions as required, read up on contentious issues, ensure the reported facts are actually correct, etc.
3. We must stand up against corruption and injustice in the church by taking the necessary actions against them, e.g. disciplining or even suspending corrupt officials in church finance and administration
4. We must address the issues at hand rather than rely on Government; a lot of the issues can be dealt with at the church level rather than relying on Government

Governance

5. The church must stand up against corruption and injustice in Government by openly expressing itself as and when required without fear
6. A recommendation to the Price Control body of Internal Affairs to have the body monitor and penalise shop owners who over-charge goods especially in the outer islands where prices are much higher than in Rarotonga

Society in general

7. The church must face and challenge corrupt and unjust practices in society as a whole, and not hide them under the mat or pretend that such practices do not exist.
8. The church must expose practitioners in society that are corrupt and unjust in their approaches and dealings with ordinary citizens
9. The church must continuously prove to society that it is an organisation aimed at fighting and minimising corruption and injustice for the benefit of all citizens of the country

ANNEX I: Economic Issues Handout

PCC/CICC Workshop on the Prophetic Role of Church Against Corruption and Injustice, Monday 14
November 2005, Sinai Hall, Avarua

by Nga Mataio

1. Definition

Economics is a science concerned with those aspects of social behaviour, and those institutions, which are involved in the use of scarce resources to produce and distribute goods and services in the satisfaction of human wants. A simpler definition would be; the wise use of scarce resources to maximise human needs and wants.

2. Why is Economics important

Economics is based on the premise that there are simply not enough resources (land, money, water, fuel, gas, fertiliser, seeds, furniture – in fact all those things that we use to make our lives easier) in this world to go around to benefit everybody. Therefore, man must conserve and use the resources available to him in a way which will ensure that he enjoys the satisfaction derived from these resources for as long as possible, including enjoyment by future generations. If there was plenty of such resources so that they will not run out when used, then the significance of economics is non-existent and therefore there is no need to economise. But because this is not so, therefore we must economise – save today for rainy days, as the saying goes.

This reasoning is closely related to 1 Corinthians 15.12-34. "If it is true that Christ was not raised from death, then we have nothing to preach and you have nothing to believe.... but the truth is that Christ has been raised from death, as the guarantee that those who sleep in death will also be raised." Therefore it is important for Christians to live according to the principles outlined in his word. Just as there are good reasons to economise, there are also good reasons to abide by the Lord's teachings.

3. Current Economic Issues

Some important economic issues impacting on the every lives of people, include the following:

- ◆ Employment – people must work for their living. If employment opportunities are limited, people migrate in search of such opportunities elsewhere. There is also the chance of becoming involved in corrupt and unjust practices to secure employment
- ◆ Cost of living – when this goes up in a significant way, people may migrate or try and take advantage of the situation by charging high prices, adversely affecting those in the low income levels
- ◆ Tourism – this is the main economic sector of the country, bringing in lots of money and benefits to the country. But are the benefits being equitably distributed?
- ◆ Investment – starting up new business help with economic progress, but there are also costs
- ◆ Banking and finance – money laundering and scams seem to be an everyday occurrence now
- ◆ Commercial economic activities, such as pearl farming, fishing, etc., have their ups and downs. Corrupt and unjust practices have taken place, and people have paid dearly

4. Economics, Corruption and Injustice

As the saying goes, where there are people, there also exists corruption and injustice. Why? As explained before, there is not enough to go around. Those who have it will desire more via both genuine and unjust means. When we hear terms like bribery, fraud, mismanagement of funds, etc., we know that these are different ways used by man to benefit himself, his family or his friends through ways that are unacceptable to the law and society.

What do we do then as Christians? Clear instructions are well laid out in the Bible. But even such instructions have not been able to protect Christians all over the world from becoming involved in corruption and unjust practices. Each person is accountable for his own life here on earth and in the after life. Economics may advance someone in terms of wealth accumulation, but the downfall due to corruption and injustice can be dramatic and terrible for both the offender and his family and friends.
